

9th | Public Health Palliative
Care International Conference.

BRIDGING CULTURE, BUILDING COMPASSION: INNOVATIONS IN PUBLIC HEALTH PALLIATIVE CARE

Public Health Palliative Care International (PHPCI) promotes a public health approach to palliative care, recognizing death, dying, and care as shared social responsibilities. The 9th International Conference on Public Health and Palliative Care, to be held in New Taipei City, Taiwan, October 6-9, 2026, will bring together global perspectives to advance compassionate communities and health-promoting palliative care.

Public Health Palliative Care International (PHPCI) 致力於推動以公共衛生為核心的安寧療護，並將死亡、臨終與照顧視為整個社會共同的責任。第九屆國際公共衛生緩和安寧照顧研討會將於2026年10月6日至9日在新北市舉行，匯聚來自世界各地的觀點與經驗，推動「慈悲關懷社區」與健康促進取向的安寧療護發展。

Abstracts Submission 摘要投稿類別

Group 1: Compassionate Communities and Engagement

This track explores the foundations of compassionate communities, focusing on urban and global challenges and opportunities, engagement frameworks, strategies for sustainability across diverse cultural contexts, and the integration of compassionate principles into workplaces, schools, and other community settings.

Group 2: Cultural Competency, Collective Identity, and Diversity

This group examines cultural influences on palliative care, including sensitive approaches for rural and Indigenous communities, equity, diversity, and inclusion strategies to empower patients, carers, and volunteers, and Asian perspectives on compassion within collectivist societies.

Group 3: New Horizons for Palliative Care

Focusing on innovative care models, this track addresses the integration of public health approaches with community, home, and long-term care, international co-creation initiatives, quality care for older adults with multimorbidity and frailty, lessons and challenges from rural and remote settings, and compassionate care in conflict and humanitarian contexts.

Group 4: PHPC – Policy, Planning, Service Delivery, and Health Promotion

This session highlights policy implementation and system-level approaches, including the status of advance care planning in Asia, Europe, and the Americas, European Union projects, intersectoral strategies for end-of-life care and compassionate workplaces, cross-national comparisons (Asia-Pacific and Europe), and advocacy for health-promoting palliative care.

Group 5: Education, Literacy, and Training

This group focuses on building knowledge and skills through developments in death and grief literacy, training the next generation through undergraduate and postgraduate curricula, and promoting compassionate education among young people through school-based initiatives.

Group 6: Innovation and Technology

Highlighting cutting-edge approaches, this track explores innovative projects and youth engagement through AI and mobile applications, the use of digital health technologies in palliative care, and the application of virtual reality to enhance community involvement.

Group 7: Research, Theory, and New Frontiers

This group advances scholarship in public health palliative care by examining emerging frontiers, novel methodologies, theory development, cross-national perspectives (Asia-Pacific and Europe), and measurement tools such as compassionate community and death literacy indices.

Group 8: Movies, Arts, Festivals, and Exhibitions

This creative track explores arts-based approaches to public health palliative care, the impact of storytelling on practice, and the role of film and cultural events in engaging communities and advancing research on life, death, and care.

Group 9: Developing the Public Health Palliative Care Network – Experience Sharing

This group focuses on network building, tools-based approaches, and the sharing of lessons learned in the development of public health palliative care initiatives.
